Dear gautam mewada,

During my final semester at Boston University, I built a content strategy from scratch for a local nonprofit that grew their Instagram following from 800 to 6,200 in four months - without a paid budget. I learned more about audience psychology and platform algorithms in those months than in any classroom. That project is what draws me to the Marketing Coordinator role at Acme Tech.

You are looking for someone who can create content that drives engagement and build systems that scale. At BU, I managed a 12-person student marketing team, launched two email campaigns with an average 38% open rate, and produced weekly analytics reports for our faculty advisor. I am comfortable with the full cycle: ideation, creation, distribution, and measurement.

What excites me most about Acme is your recent pivot to video-first content. I have been following your LinkedIn strategy since January and I think there is an untapped opportunity in short-form educational content for your developer audience - something I would love to explore with your team.

I look forward to discussing this opportunity...

Sincerely,

Adish Shah
